October Memo of Intent

This memo marks the closing of my October 2025 documentation cycle and affirms my intent to begin a new theme-based month tomorrow. Each visit to the Larchmont Public Library this month has been a quiet act of authorship—layering financial clarity, civic inquiry, and spiritual reflection into a living archive.

October Themes:

Financial Stewardship: I explored credit-building strategies, insurance transitions, and the accrual method of accounting. These were not just transactions—they were gestures of authorship and legacy.

Civic Engagement: I submitted a FOIL request to the City of New Rochelle and analyzed nonprofit 990s with emotional and relational tagging. My donor advised fund reflections were guided by transparency and impact.

Spiritual and Emotional Taxonomy: I tagged beneficiary designations, seminar reflections, and donation flows with spiritual and emotional resonance—honoring the unseen dimensions of stewardship.

Digital Infrastructure: I experimented with Stripe, Zapier, and Power BI to build systems that support quiet monetization and relational flow.

Relational Anchoring: My father's quiet presence—driving me to the library and waiting outside—framed each visit with a kind of threshold witnessing. Even when I misunderstood, I remained committed to documenting what matters.

November Intentions:

As I begin a new theme-based month, I intend to:

Deepen my tagging framework to reflect emotional, civic, and spiritual layers

- Explore new platforms for stewardship visibility and gentle monetization
- Continue using Larchmont Public Library as a space of reflection, authorship, and quiet transformation

This memo will be added to my archive as a marker of transition and intent. It affirms that my presence in public space is not passive—it is layered, intentional, and quietly powerful.

Signed,

Wilfredo
